

The UCI School of Law, the UCI School of Humanities, and the Center on Law, Equality and Race (CLEaR) present

Law and Humanities Conversations on Inequality

A reading and discussion group

THE LONG AFTERMATH OF SCOTTSBORO

Discussing If He Hollers Let Him Go by Chester Himes

A number of copies of the book will be available. Please contact olweber@lawnet.uci.edu by November 12.

*November 16, 2015 • LAW 3500
Dinner served from 6:30-7:00 p.m.
Discussion 7:00-8:00 p.m.*

To RSVP and/or to request a reasonable accommodation for a disability, email olweber@lawnet.uci.edu

The Law and Humanities Conversations is a newly-formed interdisciplinary student-faculty discussion group. This year's theme is inequality. Over the course of several meetings during this school year, with two meetings during Fall Session, we will meet for informal and lively discussions of the Scottsboro Boys case and legal opinions, art, history, literature, music, and social activism that the rape trial generated. Current events have made the legacy of the Scottsboro Boys especially salient and poignant. Discussions will address issues such as racial and economic inequality, old and new movements for social justice, student organizing, lost and found objects, collective memory, inter-generational links between activists then and now, and intersections of intersections of gender, race, class, and geography.